

The Division of Research and Academic Resources Dean's Award

The Division of Research and Academic Resources Dean's Award is given annually to an undergraduate student who has conducted superior research or has engaged in exemplary support of the work of the Division. Abigail Joseph, this year's recipient of the Dean's Award, has worked as an Online Learning Assistant with our instructional design and online support team during her entire time here at Bay Path and has supported her fellow students as a math tutor with our academic support team. She's also supported the T. Marc Futter Program for Leadership and Integrity in Action Lecture Series by serving as a student host for the 2018 lecture "Digital Citizenship and Media Literacy". While I'm so very thankful for Abbey's contributions to our division, there are some other folks who also sing her praises...

Abbey, congratulations. Your work with us has been invaluable and the entire division wishes you the best as you continue to pursue your dreams and goals!
